I'd heard about Laser Clinics Australia's 50/50 franchising partnership model and felt confident this was the right choice for me. Under such a model, you know that head office is invested in the clinic and had so much experience after opening so many others. I was amazed by how much support I received from the start. If there was an issue or question with finance, technology, marketing, HR – you name it – I know support will be available.

Jodi Cottle

Franchisee since 2019, Tweed Heads

“I'd looked at the other brands, but Laser Clinics Australia was very aligned with the way I work and it trumped the others, it's very operationally slick and the marketing is on point. I could also see that they care about the client experience. And they are very professional, which is important when you're investing your life savings.”

Natalie Kington

Franchisee since 2014, Chermshire, Garden City and Carindale

“The brand confidence that Laser Clinics Australia instills in its consumers by delivering safe, affordable treatments with real results has given me the opportunity to catapult into rapid growth and establish multiple clinics over a relatively short time. No business matches Laser Clinics Australia for delivering consumers and business partners exactly what they promise!”

Meet the franchisee

Ashika Sharma

Running a new Laser Clinics Australia business has given one franchisee the chance to combine her love for cosmetic treatments and finance.

As an experienced finance professional, Ashika Sharma is used to running the rule over investment opportunities.

She did just that before opting to become a franchisee with Laser Clinics Australia, opening the doors to a new clinic at Roselands Shopping Centre in south-western Sydney in October 2019. Already a happy client at an existing clinic, Ashika's analysis underlined the business case for pursuing her own Laser Clinics dream – it is the leading brand in the cosmetic treatment industry, it offers the security of a 50:50 partnership model that cuts start-up costs, it provides ongoing training and operations support, and the brand has a growing and loyal client base.

“I did a lot of research and it was clear that Laser Clinics was at the top of the game,” she says. “I really like the partnership model.”

Roselands is part of a network of more than 165 clinics globally, and Ashika is relishing the chance to manage and grow her clinic.

“Combining business with something I enjoy made sense to me.”

Having previously run her own finance and investment business, Ashika has drawn comfort from the support of Laser Clinics head office including the marketing, IT, HR and Operations teams and fellow franchisees as she has quickly come up to speed on the cosmetic treatment elements of the franchise. Aside from the laser hair removal and skin treatment services, she is confident that sustained sales growth can come from the ever-growing popularity of cosmetic injectables and the rise of CoolSculpting treatments which use patented cooling technology to eliminate fat cells. “I’m excited about CoolSculpting, so that’s an area that’s going to be my focus in terms of growth.”

Opening the clinic in October 2018, Ashika is pleased she made the leap of faith and joined Laser Clinics Australia.

“It’s a very well-known brand and the high standard of treatments means we will always have an edge in the market. This is an adventure – and it’s just the challenge that I was looking for.”
